Connect with Seattle's Research Community at RAD Networking

Looking for an opportunity to meet other researchers and trainees beyond your own lab or department? Research After Dark (RAD) Networking is hosting a community-building and networking no-host happy hour on Thursday, August 27 at 5:00 PM at Flatstick Pub, 609 Westlake Ave N in South Lake Union.

RAD Networking is led by graduate students and postdocs from UW, Fred Hutch, and Seattle Children's who organize events that bring together trainees and research professionals from across the Seattle area. These informal gatherings are a great opportunity to make new connections, exchange ideas, learn about research and career paths outside your immediate circle, and simply spend some time getting to know others in Seattle's scientific community.

Whether you're a regular at RAD events or have never attended before, all are welcome to stop by and connect. Food and beverages will be available for individual purchase.

RSVP and learn more about RAD Networking Happy Hour.

Explore What's Next: National Career Fair Series

Graduate students and postdocs interested in exploring their next career step may want to take advantage of the upcoming National Career Fair Series, a group of virtual recruitment events connecting graduate-level talent with opportunities in industry, government, research institutions, and higher education. Participants are welcome to attend more than one fair.

The series begins with N-GSPIRE on Monday, September 21, from 9:00 AM–12:00 PM PT, for master's and PhD students and postdoctoral scholars exploring internships and full-time positions in industry and government. Resumes are due August 31 at 5:00 AM PT to be shared with recruiters before the event.

Two additional fairs will follow in October: the National Postdoc Recruitment Fair on October 6 and the National Faculty Recruitment Fair on October 7. Both are open to PhD students and postdocs, with CVs due September 15. Those interested in both only need to submit their CV once.
