Explore UW's Inaugural Research Resources Fair

Join researchers from across UW for the inaugural Shared Research Facilities & Resources Fair and learn more about the people, technology, services, and expertise available to support research across campus.

- Date: Tuesday, November 17
- Time: 10:00 AM –1:00 PM
- Location: HUB Rooms 332 & 334
- Who should attend: Faculty, Graduate Students, Postdocs, and Research Staff

Attendees can explore shared research facilities, learn about specialized technologies and research support services, connect with potential collaborators, and discover funding opportunities.

Researchers attending the fair will also be entered into a drawing to win one of five Shared Research Facilities vouchers that can be used toward facility services. You must be present to win.

Help Shape the Future of Research at UW

The Office of the Provost is launching a new Research Resilience and Transformation Network to bring together faculty, senior research staff, and research administrators from across UW to help identify challenges and opportunities affecting research.

Participants may be invited to contribute to short-term projects focused on areas such as complex grant proposals, rapid funding opportunities, research partnerships, and international collaborations. Participation is flexible and based on individual expertise and availability.

Those interested in contributing can learn more about the network and sign up through the Office of the Provost.
